

audrey's song

I know it's easier said than done but I just don't think that our race is run I'm a little bit tired, I'm a little bit drunk and I'm thinking that I'll head up north

Your perfume lingers on my shirt and it smells so good you know it almost hurts
I love your music but I think it's your words
That make me want to head up north

Oh the thought of you singing by the ocean
I would deliver a smile upon your face
You know I've always been a fool for the notion
That sometimes things fall right into place
Sometimes things fall right into place

My thoughts of late are so obscene
I'm homesick for a place I've never been Something in your eyes makes me dream
I dream about heading up north

Oh the thought of you singing by the rain tree
I would deliver a smile upon your face
You know I've never known a bed to be so empty
I guess sometimes things fall right into place
Sometimes things fall right into place

I've never known a soul so brave and true
And I don't know how or why this grew
But babe I think I might be falling for you Falling all the way up north

Oh the thought of you singing by the ocean
I would deliver a smile upon your face
You know I've always been a fool for the notion
That sometimes things fall right into place
Sometimes things fall right into place
